PRESIDENT GEORGE ANDREW

CHRISTENBERRY

Dr. George Andrew Christenberry was inaugurated president of Augusta College March 26, 1971 in ceremonies held on campus in the Performing Arts Theatre. He assumed the presidency July 1, 1970 by appointment of the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia.

He was born September 3, 1915, in Macon, Georgia. He received the B.S. degree (magna cum laude) in biology from Furman University, and the M.A. degree in botany and the Ph.D. degree in botany from the University of North Carolina.

Christenberry served as professor and chairman of the Department of Biology at Meredith College, 1940-43; as instructor in the cadet training program of the Army Air Corps at Furman University, 1943-44; as an officer in the Naval Reserve, 1944-46; as professor of biology at Furman University, 1946-53, and dean of the Men's College at that institution, 1948-53, as president of Shorter College, 1953-58; and as administrative director and vice president of Furman University, 1958-64.

He became associated with the Georgia College at Milledgeville as professor and chairman of the Biology Department in 1964. In 1965, he was named Dean of the College and served in that capacity until coming to Augusta College.

Dr. Christenberry is the author of a number of scientific publications. He is also a member of the Association of Southeastern Biologists, the American Institute of Biological Sciences, the Georgia Academy of Science, the Georgia Education Association, and a number of other professional and honorary organizations.

He has served as president of the Department of Higher Education of the Georgia Association of Colleges, and as president of the Rotary Club in Milledgeville.

He is married to the former Elizabeth Reid, Greenville, South Carolina. They have a daughter Mrs. R. P. Long, Brunswick, Georgia; and two sons, George A., Jr., Dalton; and John Reid, a graduate student at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

WHITE COLUMNS. How do you see your role as President at Augusta College?

CHRISTENBERRY. I conceive my role as President of Augusta College as one of leadership and responsibility. The leadership role concerns the development of the College to provide for the citizens of the CSRA academic instruction, public service, and research to meet the needs of a growing community. There is a responsibility to the citizens of Georgia, including especially the students and faculty of Augusta College and the residents of this area, to see that Augusta College fulfills its purpose as a senior institution in the University System of Georgia seeking to meet the needs in the three areas listed.

WHITE COLUMNS. Has the title of President of Augusta College hampered your being recognized as an individual?

CHRISTENBERRY. I do not think so.

WHITE COLUMNS. How do you view your relationship with the student body?

CHRISTENBERRY. My relationship with students has been primarily with individuals such as student leaders and certain organizations. The commuting nature of the student body mitigates against extensive contacts. This is an aspect which I regret intensely. I plan to schedule open meetings with students during the coming year to exchange ideas and receive suggestions.

WHITE COLUMNS. What would be your honest evaluation of the student body?

CHRISTENBERRY. I evaluate the student body as above average in intelligence and motivation. It compares most favorably with the student body of any college with which I have been associated.

WHITE COLUMNS. If a student protest started at AC, what would be your stance?

CHRISTENBERRY. If a peaceful student protest occurred in accordance with College regulations, I would first ascertain the cause and seek to discuss solutions to the situation. If actions disruptive of the teaching function or the administration of the College took place, it would be dealt with firmly.

WHITE COLUMNS. What is the college administration doing to achieve closer personal relationships with the students?

CHRISTENBERRY. Students have been appointed to College committees, have assisted in the selection of a dean of students, and have participated in the Self-Study for the Southern Association. A committee to design a system of College Governance will be appointed in the near future. Its composition will be 50% faculty, 25% students and 25% administration. This should involve student opinion in developing the future of the College.

WHITE COLUMNS. What are the plans for a Master's Program at Augusta College?

CHRISTENBERRY. Proposals for Master's programs in Business administration and education are currently being considered by the Board of Regents. It is hoped that favorable action will occur soon.

WHITE COLUMNS. How would you compare AC with other colleges in the Southeast, especially concerning academics?

CHRISTENBERRY. Augusta College compares most favorably with other colleges in the Southeast.

WHITE COLUMNS. Will there be any black men or women hired as faculty members within the near future?

CHRISTENBERRY. We have actively sought qualified black faculty to fill vacancies for next year. Due to the great shortage, at present we have not been successful, but will continue our efforts.

WHITE COLUMNS. Do you recognize a drug problem in the AC community? If so, what is Augusta College doing to help combat this problem?

CHRISTENBERRY. The Augusta area has a drug problem. At present it does not seem to be critical in the Augusta College community. We have appointed a committee on Drug Abuse that has been active in disseminating material at registration and stands ready to assist anyone that has a drug problem. This committee is cooperating with other organizations in the area concerned with the drug problem. Information on drugs will be included in physical education courses next year. The student personnel department is alert and ready to assist in dealing with the drug problem.

WHITE COLUMNS. What role do you think Augusta College should take in the CSRA community?

CHRISTENBERRY. Augusta College is a center of learning. All facets of our present civilization including the culture, business, politics, social relations, and science should be presented in such a way that individuals may determine how they may reach conclusions in the best interest of the individual and society. A college is not a social reformer, political machine or creator of problems.

WHITE COLUMNS. What plans for physical expansion does the college have?

CHRISTENBERRY. Augusta College has been authorized to renovate Building Six into a classroom building to house nursing, psychology, sociology and possibly political science. Funds have been allocated for the athletic area. A request has been forwarded for a new library building and we hope to receive favorable action in the near future. A committee will soon begin developing the program for a new gymnasium. These are our immediate needs. Following these projects we hope to renovate the old Music Building to become an office building and the current library building to enlarge our science facilities.

WHITE COLUMNS. Are there any plans for obtaining the Boykin Wright property? If so, what plans are there?

CHRISTENBERRY. The Boykin Wright property belongs to Augusta College. The donors have not removed the contents, so full possession has not been realized. The Physical Facilities Committee has been requested to study prospective utilization of this property.

WHITE COLUMNS. Are there any future plans to change the administration, especially concerning personnel?

CHRISTENBERRY. No.

THE MAKING OF A PRESIDENT

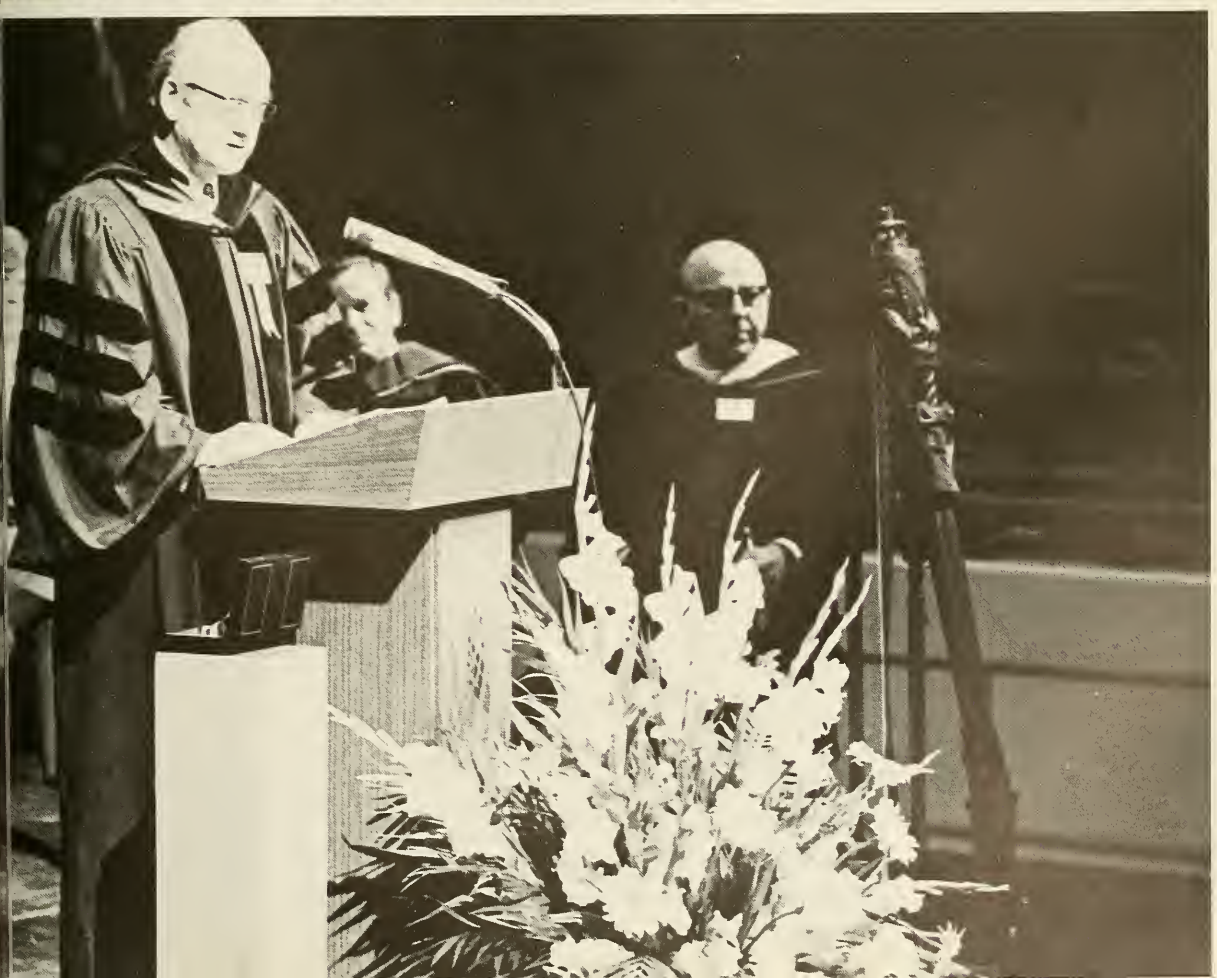
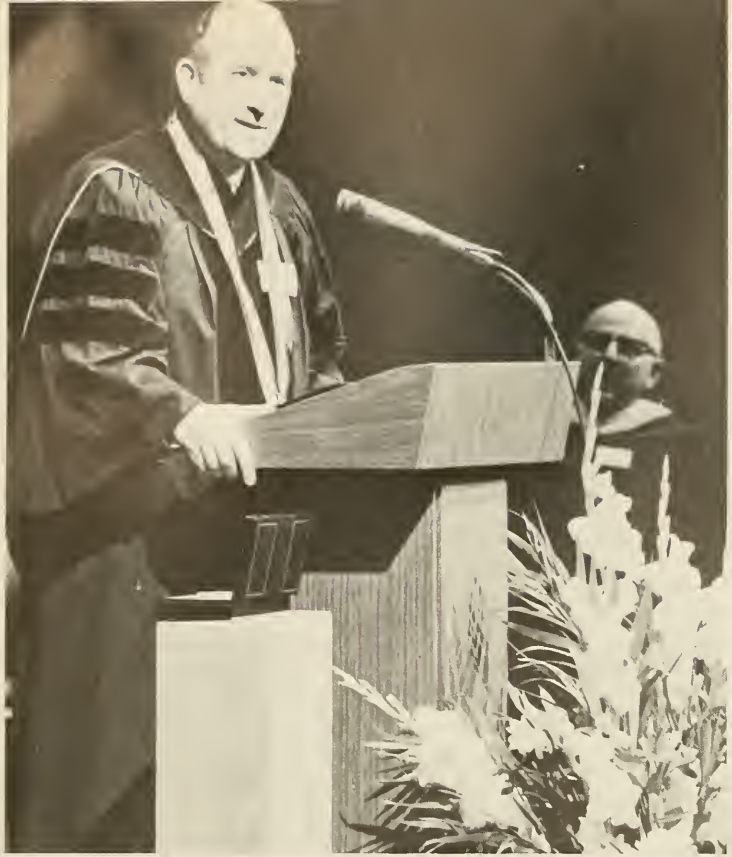
March 26, 1971, was an important day in the life of Dr. George Christenberry. On this date, he was inaugurated as the sixth president of Augusta College.

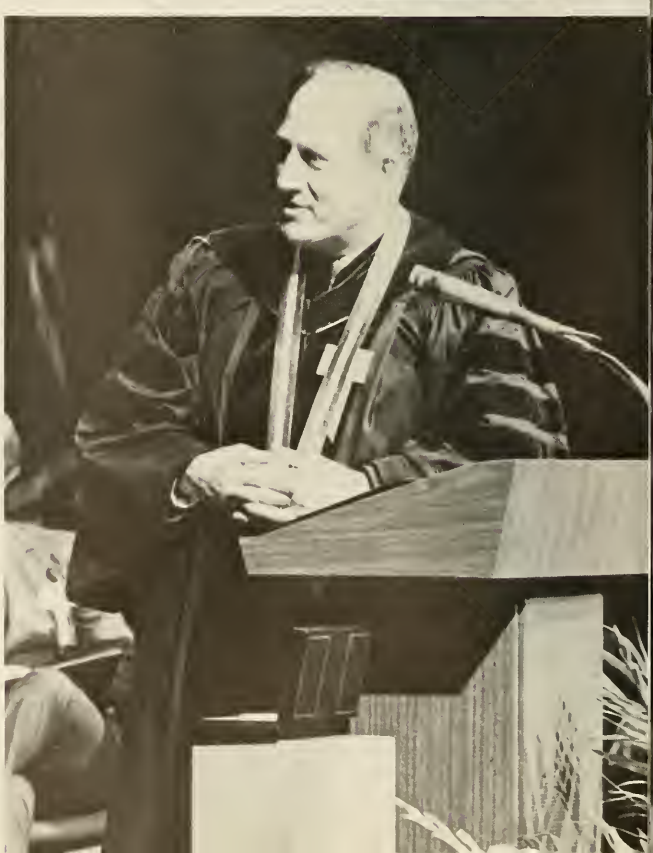
An academic procession to the performing arts theater was headed by delegates from Princeton and Harvard. The invocation was given by the Reverend R. J. Robinson. Then followed a series of greetings to the president from some of the visiting dignitaries.

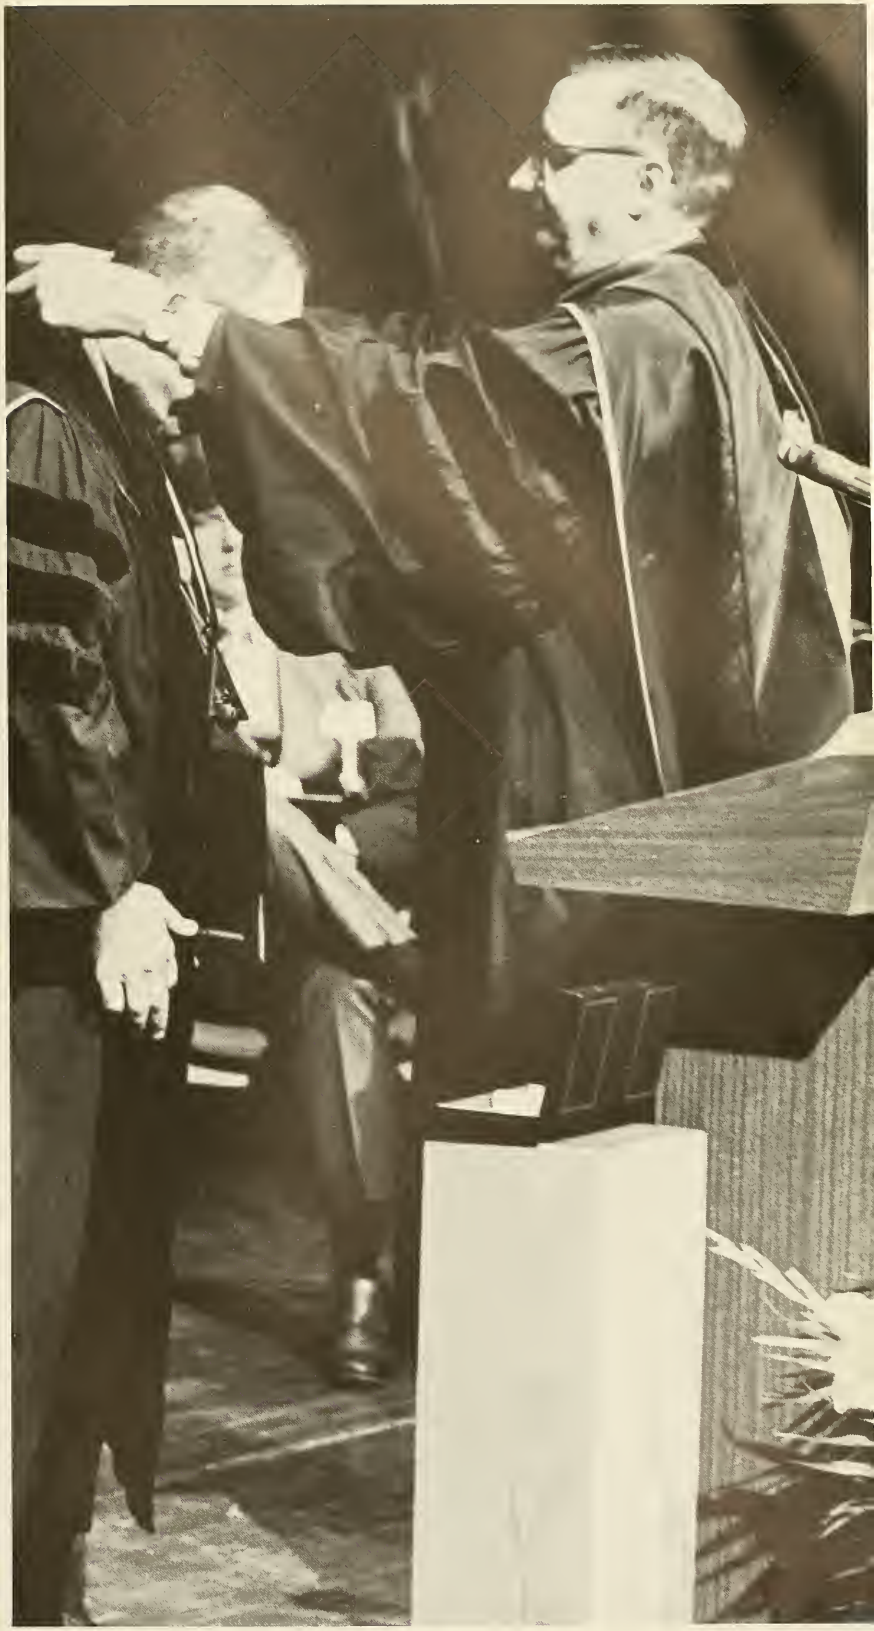
The inaugural address was given by Dr. Phillip Handler, the president of the National Academy of Science. Dr. Handler maintained that the problem man is having with the environment is being exaggerated. The problem is also being badly handled in that people are being self-righteous instead of using science, he said.

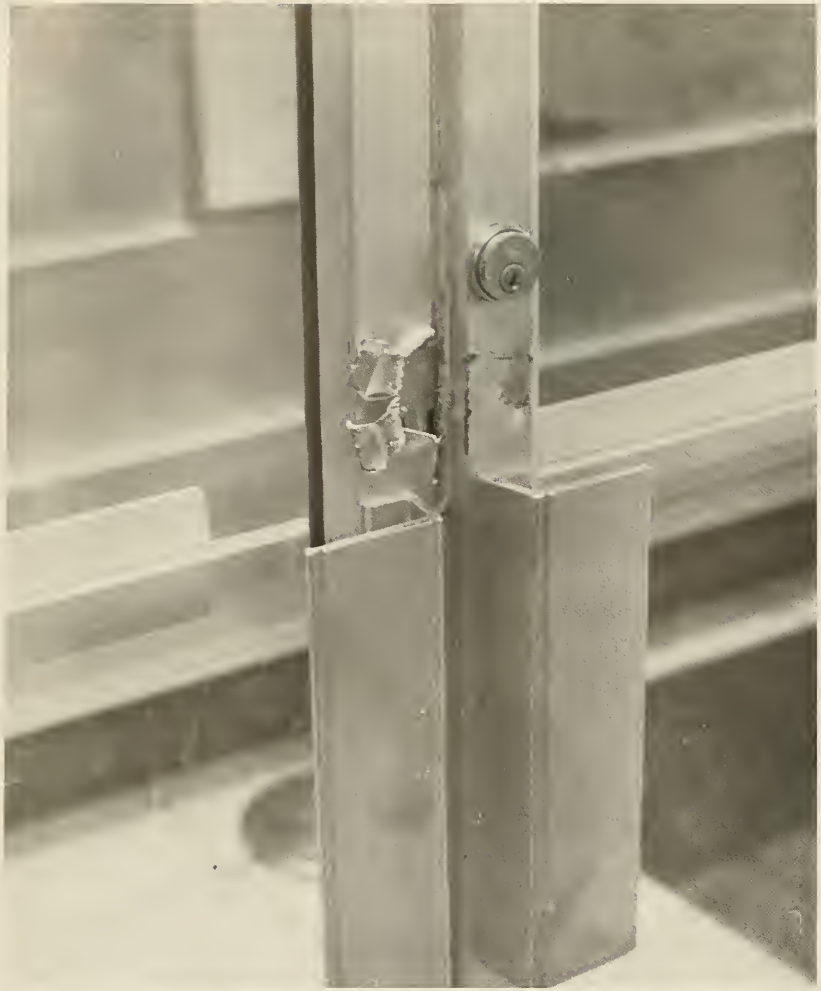
The induction of Dr. Christenberry as president was performed by Chancellor George Simpson of the Board of Regents. President Christenberry was given a silver medallion with the letters "A.C." and on it hung a blue and white ribbon, the school colors, as a symbol of the powers vested in him.











POLICE

SECURITY

The pinkertons are gone! This was the battle cry of the many happy car borne students who thought the era of parking sticker blues were gone forever. Alas, they were in for a surprise. Crimebusters Inc. the new organization, headed by Julian Armstrong, was established. While many of the fines were lowered as a result of Mr. Armstrong's administration, there was no loss of revenue as white slips of paper began appearing with monotonous regularity on cars all over campus.

More than this, was the fact that the man was working with the local boys in blue. The first sign of this appeared when students began running into the Student Center cursing and swearing that their cars had been stolen! That's right, stolen. The offenders found out that Armstrong and Co. had had the cars towed off. That's 25 dollars out of some poor student's pocket to get his car out of the clutches of John Law. Thanks for bringing law and order to the A.C campus again. Hey, What about the blown safe back last Oct. — ever solve that? Guess not, too busy hauling away cars.

PARKING LOT

After much confusion, deliberation, and confrontation, the administration finally managed to get funds appropriated for turning A.C.'s "dirt parking lot" into the architectural oasis which now beautifies our campus. Construction on the parking lot was started during late Summer. At the time students began arriving for Fall quarter, the construction workers were in full throttle. Along with the parking lot the front of the college activities center was also plowed up, leveled off, and laid out to complete the construction.

The asphalt was finally laid and the students no longer had to face the hazardous parking conditions. Late Fall quarter, the parking lot was opened and now students were able to use the parking area closest to the main buildings on campus without the fear of harming their cars. The new parking lot is not only practical but also adds to the collegiate atmosphere of Augusta College.

Marv & Lenny

"We shall return." These words were spoken by Coach Marvin Vanover as his Jaguars prepared to return to Augusta after being defeated in the second round of the NAIA Tournament last year in Kansas City. Through the superlative coaching of Marvin Vanover and Lenny Carlson, and with the determined spirit of the team, this hope became a reality. Once again, the Jaguars proved their ability to conquer their opponents and become District 25 Champions and capture the opportunity to compete for the NAIA Championship.

It was a Sunday morning when the proud and determined Jaguars stepped off Delta Flight 403 into the 27° Kansas City weather. After a quick lunch and a brief rest, the team began practice to prepare themselves for the Tuesday morning battle. Sunday night held a tour of the city for some and a movie for others, but all retired early in order to be prepared for the rough Monday practice sessions. There was a break in the action Monday night for the parade of champions and introduction of the all time NAIA team.

Six o'clock Tuesday morning, the slightly nervous Jags arose, ate breakfast, and dressed for their ten o'clock appointment with Great Falls. Augusta College was as cold as the Kansas City weather in the first half and were unable to compete with the Argonauts as they trailed 40-27 at halftime. However, in the second half, the team exhibited their true playing ability and fought back vigorously to tie 65-all with 5:20 remaining. The fight to the tie was too exhausting for the Jags and they were unable to obtain the lead, being defeated by a score of 75-71. There were tears in the eyes of a few and a feeling of disappointment in all, as the team showed that they had been defeated but not beaten and the words "we shall return" echoed in their minds.

FRESHMAN DANCE

Those who attended the Freshman Dance enjoyed music by Mike Stewart and the Paramounts. The dance opened the beginning of fall quarter at Augusta College, and familiarized the freshman class and new students with the College Activities Center.

The couples were uninhibited about showing their varied dancing approaches. Every dance from the alligator to the push-n-pull was seen.

CHRISTMAS BELLE

This year's Christmas Belle Ball was highlighted by the crowning of Miss Tina Seldin, a Sophomore sponsored by the Student Moblilzation. Music for the dance was provided by Hour Syn and the national recording group, Bloodrock.

It was evident that the festive holiday season was present as spirits ran high and drinks ran low.

HOMECOMING

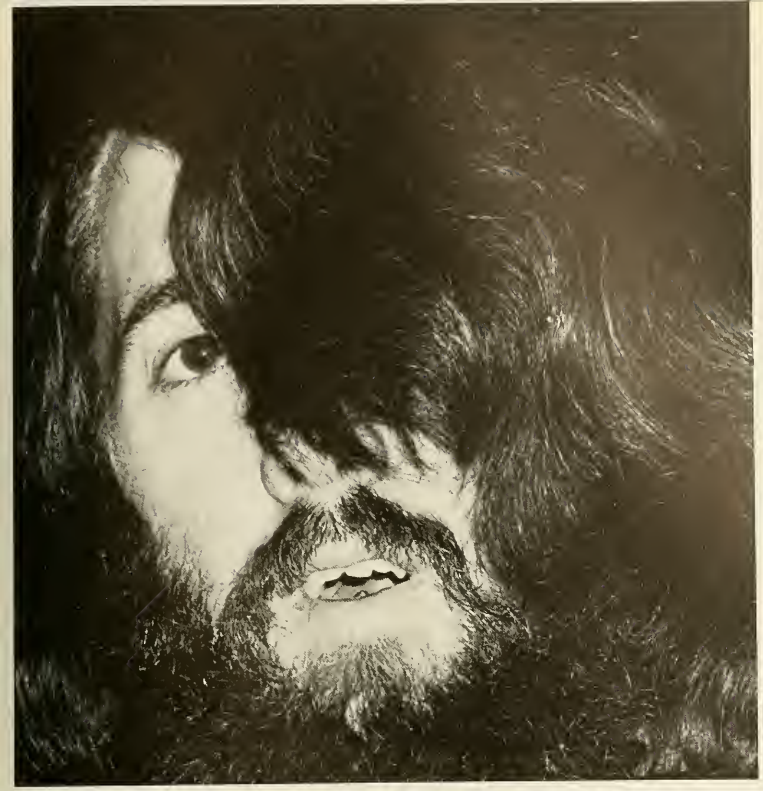
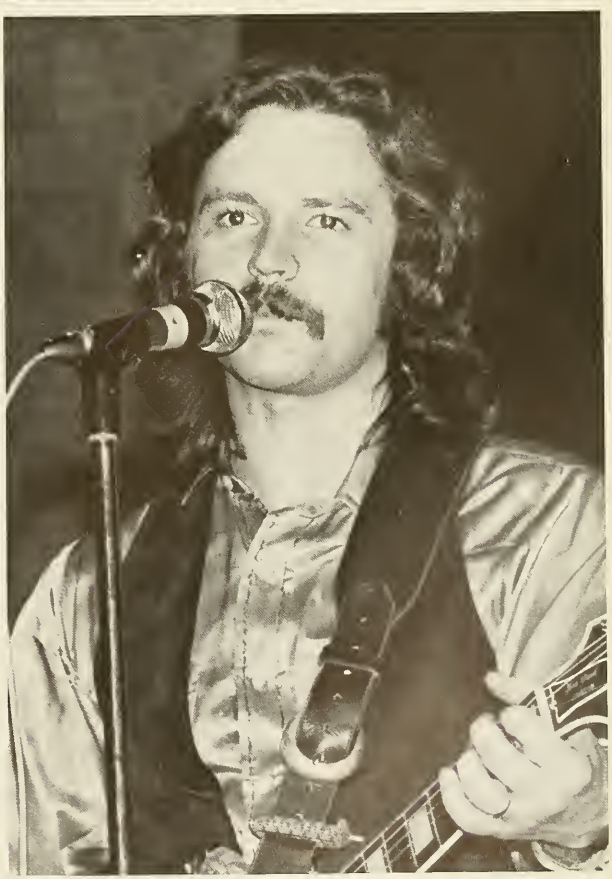
After the crowning of Miss Janice Weatherly as the 1971 Homecoming Queen, the mighty Jaguars were once again victorious over their opponent. The game was followed by a dance featuring "Georgia's Best" at which the students celebrated the victory.

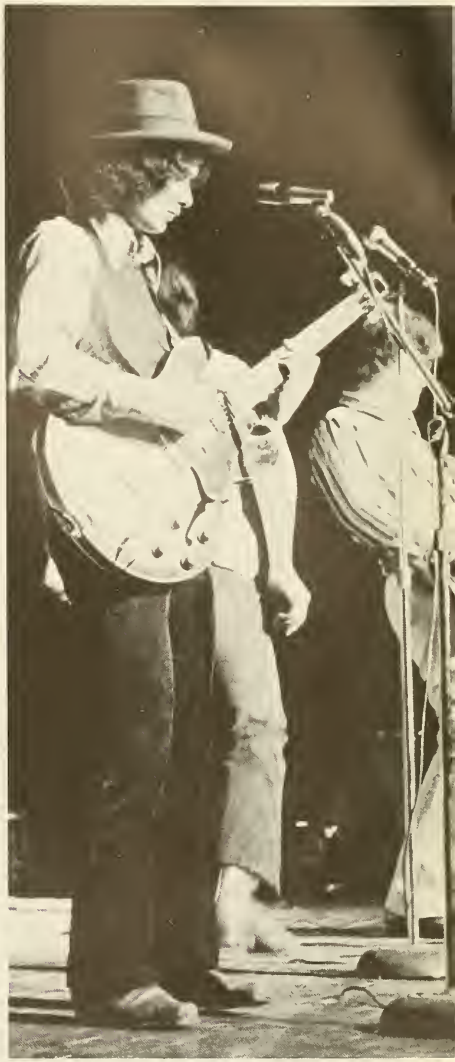
Homecoming activities began with the nomination of twelve lovely coeds who competed for the title of 1971 Homecoming Queen. The events of the week included the display of exhibits from many campus organizations. The first place exhibit was created by AXA. The bonfire Thursday, one of many weeklong events included a speech by Coach Marvin Vanover, cheers and the burning of a 1970 White Columns by certain dissident elements.





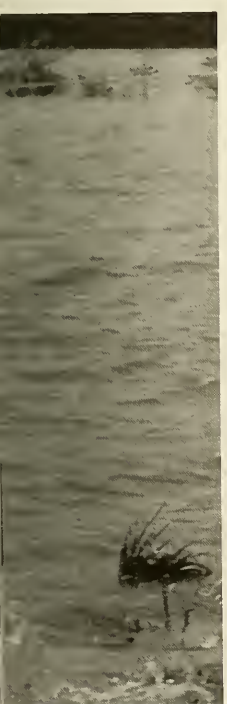
SPRING

CONCERT



Once again the AC student body proved that it is not as apathetic as some may think when a large majority of the student body showed its interest and support by attending this year's Spring Concert. The performing arts theater was packed with a jubilant crowd as they came to watch and listen to the versatile Friends of Distinction. The performance by the Friends of Distinction can be considered one of the most outstanding events to take place on campus this year. To set the mood for the evening, Hour Syn provided the pre-show entertainment.

THE A.C. BEACH



Several years ago, Augusta College was granted numerous acres of Clark Hill property. Until recently, this land lay idle and its resources were untouched. Due to a few students, interest was aroused and this land was eventually converted into the A.C. Beach. Money was appropriated from Student Activities fees. Student Government organized a committee to study the development of the land and set policies for the use of the area. After much deliberation and planning, the development of the area was finally underway. The land was cleared, beach and picnic areas established, two boat docks built, and an adequate recreational center constructed.

Since the area was opened, it has been taken advantage of by many. Student Government has had several successful, planned functions at the area, one of which was this year's Field Day. Students gathered for a day of sunning, swimming, boating, skiing, socializing, and, of course, partying. Food was provided by AXA at a small cost and in the evening, American Express played for students' listening and dancing pleasure.

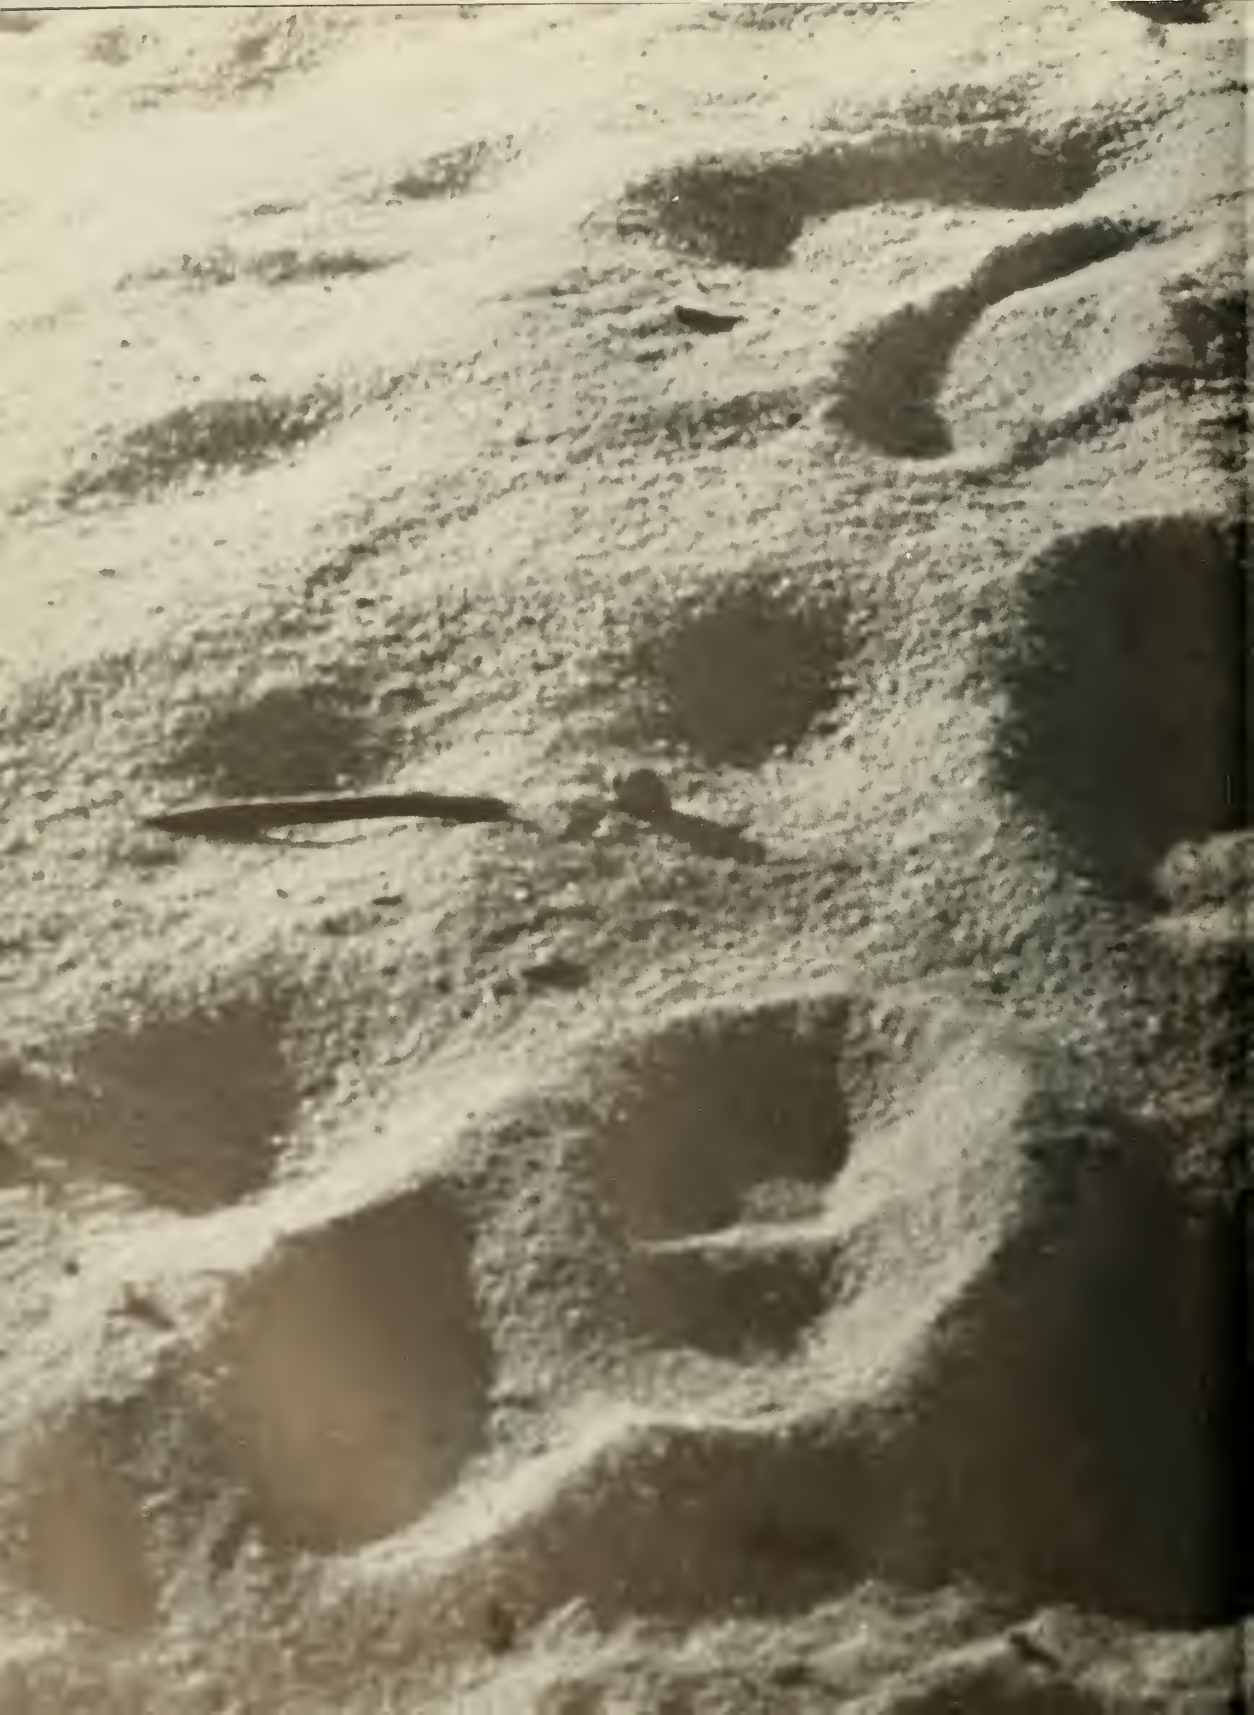
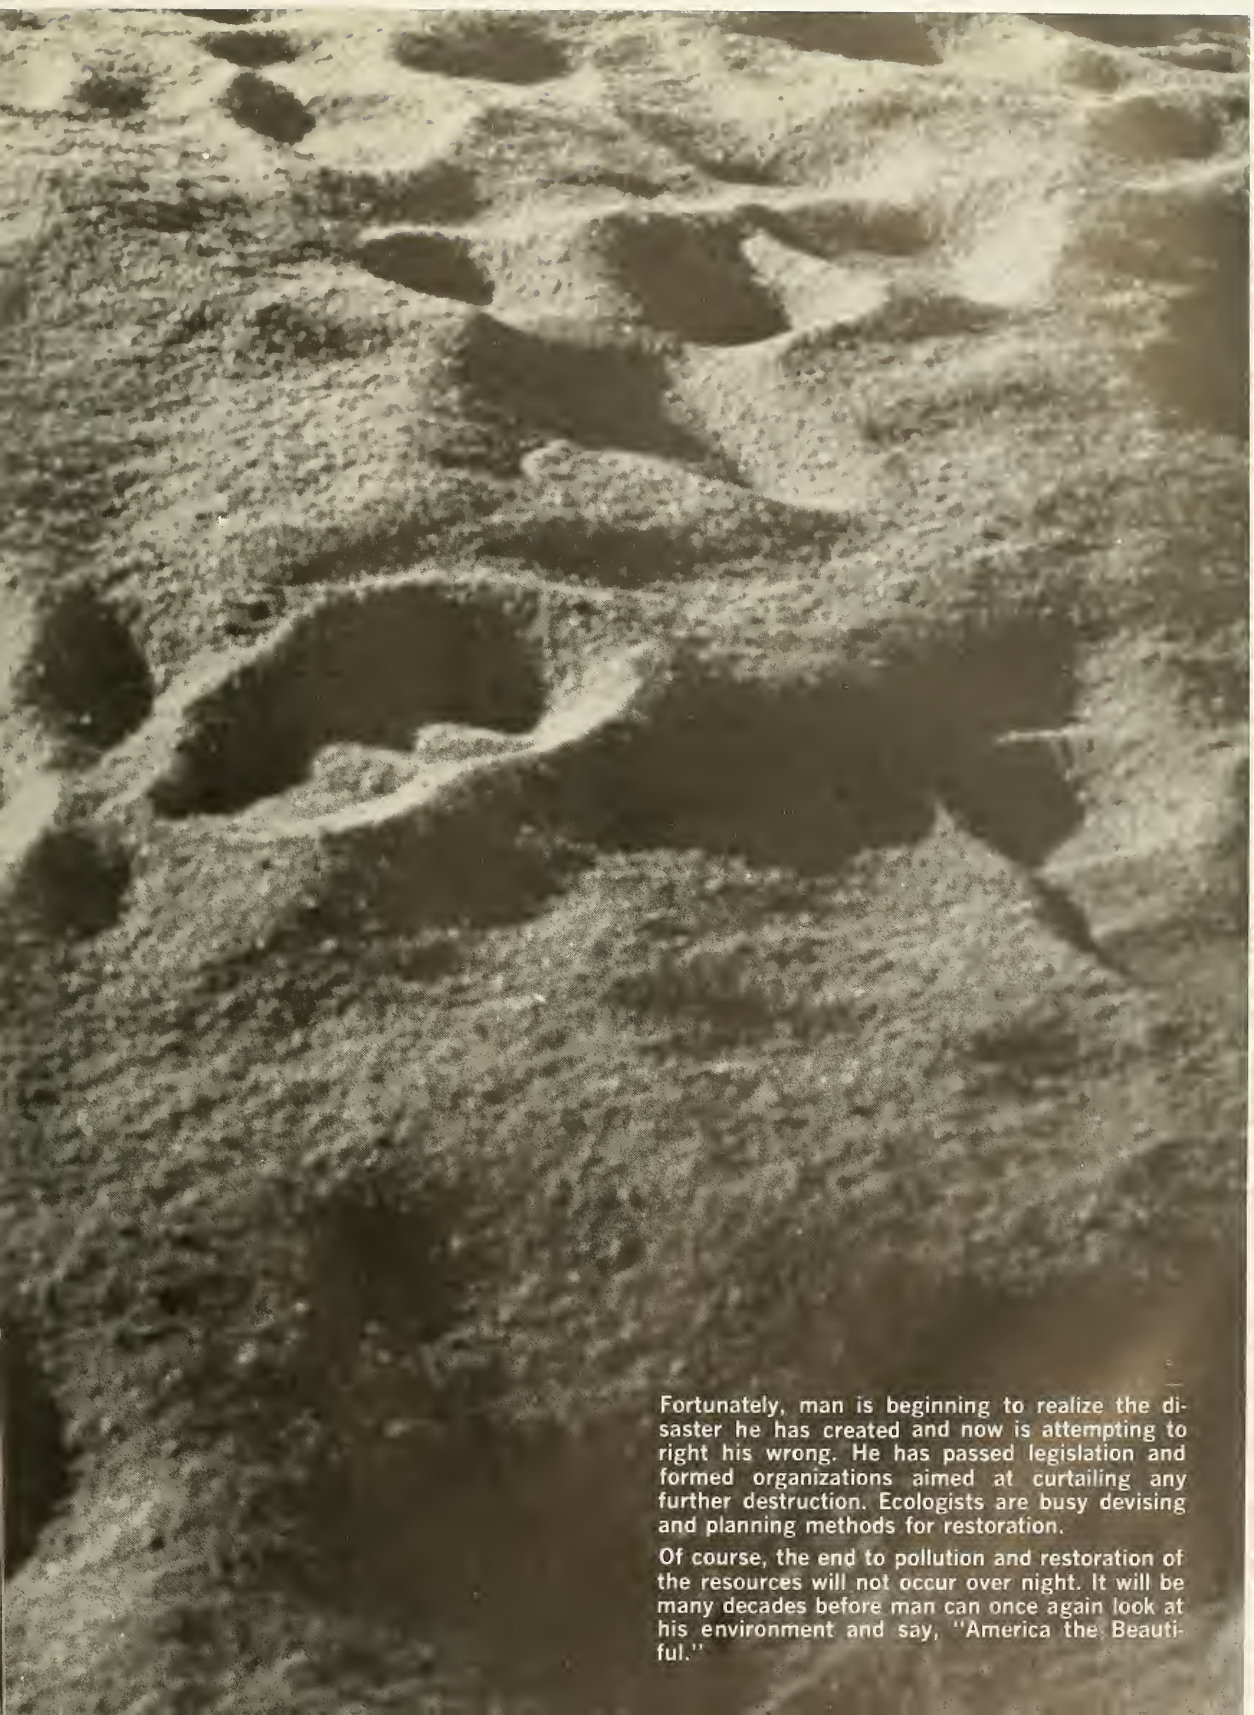
AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL?

"America the Beautiful", a phrase which is no longer applicable to this land, due to the stupidity and ignorance of man. Through the decades, man has robbed our once beautiful land of its natural grandeur and beauty. He has wasted, destroyed, and depleted the natural resources. He has converted beautiful woodlands into sites of interstate highways and structures of tall buildings. He has polluted the once immaculate rivers with his human waste and factory disposals, which have made them unfit for human or wildlife use. He has turned the undeveloped land into areas for spoilage and trash. The great human being has even polluted the air he breathes, a necessity for survival.





Fortunately, man is beginning to realize the disaster he has created and now is attempting to right his wrong. He has passed legislation and formed organizations aimed at curtailing any further destruction. Ecologists are busy devising and planning methods for restoration.

Of course, the end to pollution and restoration of the resources will not occur over night. It will be many decades before man can once again look at his environment and say, "America the Beautiful."

Once again I sit back and ponder what I have accomplished in this year's book. I have been turned on, as well as turned off, during its organization and completion. It has offered moments of joy, excitement, sorrow, and failure. It has something to offer to all.

As you observe the contents of this book, you too will become turned on and turned off. Realize that a single second is captured of a person's life (maybe your own) and hopefully will never be forgotten. Take note of the events and moments of grandeur, because it was you, the students, faculty, and administration that made these moments possible. Read and comprend the copy, agree or disagree, but express yourself.
